

Jan Bumann, Deputy Director

Jan Buman graduated in business management from the University of Economics of Bern and completed an MBA at Macquarie Graduate School of Management in Sydney in 2007. He began his career as a project manager with PostFinance in Bern, then worked as a market analyst for Generali Insurance in Nyon for a year, before joining Credit Suisse in 2009 as a relationship manager. In 2012 he joined Deutsche Bank as a project leader in the area of private banking, a position that required him to move to New York. He joined the Association of Swiss Private Banks in September 2015 as deputy director. He is responsible for monitoring issues that directly affect the banking sector at the national level. He is perfectly trilingual in German, French and English, and is a member of several committees and working groups of the Swiss Bankers Association and economiesuisse.
